The League of Frightened Men Mar 13 2021 Paul Chapin's college cronies never quite forgave themselves for instigating the tragic prank that left their friend a twisted cripple. Yet with their hazing days at Harvard far behind them, they had every reason to believe that Paul himself had forgiven them—until a class reunion ends in a fatal fall, and the poems, swearing deadly retribution, begin to arrive. Now this league of frightened men is desperate for Nero Wolfe's help. But are Wolfe's brilliance and Archie's tenacity enough to outwit a killer so cunning he can plot and execute in plain sight? Introduction by Robert Goldsborough "It is always a treat to read a Nero Wolfe mystery. The man has entered our folklore."—The New York Times Book Review A grand master of the form, Rex Stout is one of America's greatest mystery writers, and his literary creation Nero Wolfe is one of the greatest fictional detectives of all time. Together, Stout and Wolfe have entertained—and puzzled—millions of mystery fans around the world. Now, with his perambulatory man-about-town, Archie Goodwin, the arrogant, gourmandizing, sedentary sleuth is back in the original seventy-three cases of crime and detection written by the inimitable master himself, Rex Stout.

Creepiosity Feb 09 2021 In his hilarious yet disturbing (because it's so true) book Creepiosity: A Hilarious Guide to the Unintentionally Creepy, comedy writer David Bickel presents readers with 100 of the most unsettling everyday things, such as grown men in Boy Scout uniforms, old ladies with really long hair, fish with people faces, lifelike baby dolls, and much more. Bickel infuses each subject with comedic insight into what exactly makes it creepy and provides an appropriately hilarious photo to help illustrate his point. And since not all creepiness is created equal, Bickel has invented an unnecessarily complex mathematical formula (or Creepiosity Index, if you will) to quantify each unsettling item's relative creepiness. (Band-Aids that were once affixed to someone's body but now aren't: 7.454.) However, Bickel also acknowledges that creepiness, universal as it may be, is far from absolute. To that end, he invites readers to assign their own Creepiosity number to these and other curiosities via a companion Web site. (For example, what's more disturbing, hairless cats or Dick Cheney smiling? You decide!)

To Kill a Mockingbird Mar 01 2020 Voted America's Best-Loved Novel in PBS's The Great American Read Harper Lee's Pulitzer Prize-winning masterwork of honor and injustice in the deep South—and the heroism of one man in the face of blind and violent hatred One of the most cherished stories of all time, To Kill a Mockingbird has been translated into more than forty languages, sold more than forty million copies worldwide, served as the basis for an enormously popular motion picture, and was voted one of the best novels of the twentieth century by librarians across the country. A gripping, heart-wrenching, and wholly remarkable tale of coming-of-age in a South poisoned by virulent prejudice, it views a world of great beauty and savage inequities through the eyes of a young girl, as her father—a crusading local lawyer—risks everything to defend a black man unjustly accused of a terrible crime.

Katy's Legacy Oct 27 2019 A prologue, occurring in the early 19th Century, sets the stage by showing the origin of the EVIL' and the woods. Six young boys, entering adolescence all, comrades in the Boy Scouts, love to play pranks, talk, hike and enjoy being alive. At a summer scout camp only two of the boys, Tommy and Johnny, earned enough Merit Badges to suit their Scoutmaster. In the final Scout Meeting of their lives, the Scoutmaster admonishes them to go out and practice hard so they can get more Merit Badges at an upcoming Scout Jamboree. The boys, knowing their parents will not allow them to go out alone one more weekend, lie to them and allow Johnny and Tommy to lead them on their last campout, so they can learn enough to earn more Merit Badges when they return. They take a wrong direction, but are oblivious until they enter some sinister and mysterious woods late on their second day. In the afternoon they come upon a very old house of Spanish design. They enter, explore the downstairs (the second floor unapproachable because of rotted wood on the staircase), then settle down to eat and tell stories, reminisce and generally goof off as they always have done. The night descends with several mysterious and ominous portents, as had their previous night camping out in the open. After even the indefatigable Tommy becomes scared enough to ask Johnny to come with him, they take a final walk down a long hallway to see who, or what, continues to come down the stairs. Stairs they could not ascend because of rotted wood and banister. The fright Johnny receives is different from the horrors and strange effects on each of the other boys, as they begin to find out only the next morning. To their horror, the bravest of them all, Tommy, has been frightened so deeply, his hair has turned white and he can only babble incoherently and must be carried by the boys in order to escape. In their haste to leave that awful house they only later discover that one of them has not come with them! The return to civilization and their homecoming leaves them broken as a group, nevermore to be merely boys and Boy Scouts. Johnny returns nine years later to try to get the remaining boys, each now nearing twenty years, together for one last night before Johnny serves overseas in the U.S. Army. They receive permission from Tommy's parents to come see him, with one strong requisite: they must not even broach the subject of The House.' The reunion is joyous but strained. At the end of the evening Johnny, because of his own fears, did not see who or what was coming down the stairs that fateful night, is unable to stop himself from trying to get Tommy to remember what he had seen and to tell all. In the end, Tommy is catapulted back into horror. Johnny's friends are broken hearted and the secret remains in the mind of a young man who has retreated into unreachable portions of it.

The Most Frightening Story Ever Told Apr 25 2022 Roald Dahl meets R. L. Stine in this spine-tingling and hilarious tale from a bestselling author! Billy Shivers doesn't have a lot of excitement in his life. He prefers to spend his days reading alone in the Hitchcock Public Library. So it is a bit out of character when he finds himself drawn to the Haunted House of Books, and a competition daring readers to survive an entire night spent inside. The Haunted House of Books is a cross between a bookstore and a booby trap. It's a creaky old mansion full of dark hallways and things that go bump in the night, and the store's ill-tempered owner, Mr. Rapsallion, only adds to the mystery. But the frights of the store itself are nothing compared to the stories it holds. These stories are so ghastly, so terrifying, so shocking that once you've read them, you'll never be the same. Does Billy dare begin? Do you? "Not for the faint of heart, oscillating between spooky and mysterious, this will appeal to readers looking for a fright." —School Library Journal

The Girl with the Frightened Eyes Jun 27 2022 The search for a vanished beauty leads a Manhattan sleuth from the dark underbelly of the art world to the bared bellies of Broadway burlesque. Lawrence Lariar was one of the most popular cartoonists of the twentieth century. But from the 1940s through the 1960s, he also crafted a line of lean and mean detective and mystery novels under his own name as well as the pseudonyms Michael Stark, Adam Knight, Michael Lawrence, and Marston La France. Lariar now gets his due as a leading artist in hardboiled crime fiction. World War II has ended but Jeff Keye has one more mission: find the beloved sister of a buddy who died in France and break the news personally. An aspiring artist, Paula Smith was, by all accounts, sweet, simple, and warm-hearted. But now she's missing and Jeff needs the help of detective Homer Bull. What Homer has to go on so far are tight-lipped acquaintances, rumors of personal demons, a sequined trail that leads to the Times Square strip circuit, and the brutal, unsolved murder of a playboy art critic. Piece by piece, the real story of Paula's life is starting to come together. And it's not making for a pretty picture. All Homer knows for sure is that Paula is definitely on the run. But is it to save her life or to cover her tracks? The Girl with the Frightened Eyes is the 4th book in the Homer Bull & Hank MacAndrews Mysteries, but you may enjoy reading the series in any order.

The Troop Sep 18 2021 WINNER OF THE JAMES HERBERT AWARD FOR HORROR WRITING "The Troop scared the hell out of me, and I couldn't put it down. This is old-school horror at its best."

—Stephen King Once every year, Scoutmaster Tim Riggs leads a troop of boys into the Canadian wilderness for a weekend camping trip—a tradition as comforting and reliable as a good ghost story around a roaring bonfire. But when an unexpected intruder stumbles upon their campsite—shockingly thin, disturbingly pale, and voraciously hungry—Tim and the boys are exposed to something far more frightening than any tale of terror. The human carrier of a bioengineered nightmare. A horror that spreads faster than fear. A harrowing struggle for survival with no escape from the elements, the infected...or one another. Part Lord of the Flies, part 28 Days Later—and all-consuming—this tightly written, edge-of-your-seat thriller takes you deep into the heart of darkness, where fear feeds on sanity...and terror hungers for more.

The Radioactive Boy Scout Nov 01 2022 Growing up in suburban Detroit, David Hahn was fascinated by science. While he was working on his Atomic Energy badge for the Boy Scouts, David's obsessive attention turned to nuclear energy. Throwing caution to the wind, he plunged into a new project: building a model nuclear reactor in his backyard garden shed. Posing as a physics professor, David solicited information on reactor design from the U.S. government and from industry experts. Following blueprints he found in an outdated physics textbook, David cobbled together a crude device that threw off toxic levels of radiation. His wholly unsupervised project finally sparked an environmental emergency that put his town's forty thousand suburbanites at risk. The EPA ended up burying his lab at a radioactive dumpsite in Utah. This offbeat account of ambition and, ultimately, hubris has the narrative energy of a first-rate thriller.
